

Without federal or state COVID-19 liability protection legislation in place, businesses are operating in risky, uncharted waters. Lawsuits by patrons and employees claiming they contracted COVID-19 while on a business's premises are now being filed against companies across the country.

Are You Afraid of Being Sued?

Businesses should consider proactive steps to protect themselves from potential COVID-19 liability exposure. Lawsuits could devastate businesses already struggling financially.

Information Management Assistance

netlogx has developed a comprehensive reporting tool to document and date when your organization implemented federal OSHA and CDC, state, and local COVID-19 response measures and safeguards to ensure a safe environment for employees, customers, clients, and members. We are assisting our clients by providing verification and documentation that they have implemented these protections.

Proof of Compliance

This report can be shared with employees and posted publicly. Lawyers argue that employers who make a good faith effort to follow COVID-19 CDC guidelines should be entitled to "safe harbor" provisions sheltering them from potential liability.*

This information is not intended to and does not constitute legal advice. You should contact your attorney to obtain advice with respect to any particular legal issue or problem.*

What's in the Report?

- Reflects current locality-based COVID-19 response plan:
 - Health screening process
 - Updated policies
 - Personal protective equipment (PPE)
 - Sanitation and disinfecting protocols
 - Social distancing compliance

- Documents and verifies by dates when updated business workplace and safety policies are implemented

- Demonstrates the existence of a required employee communications plan

- Captures justification and supporting documentation such as photos, invoices, and signage as proof of compliance

- Includes regular updates of any new business practices and safeguard guidelines
